I. PURPOSE

- A. The purpose of this directive is to set forth the policies and procedures of the East Haven Police Department regarding the legal requirements and approved procedures associated with the investigation of domestic violence incidents in which persons of questionable immigration status may be victims, and where the continued presence and availability of such persons may be necessary to the successful investigation and prosecution of one or more alleged criminal perpetrators.

II. POLICY

- A. Whenever an officer determines that a family violence crime has been committed within such officer's jurisdiction, such officer shall arrest the person or persons suspected of its commission and charge such person or persons with the appropriate crime.
- B. No officer investigating an incident of family violence shall discourage a victim of family violence from making or pursuing a criminal complaint against an alleged perpetrator of qualifying criminal activity, or from participating in the prosecution of an alleged offender because of the immigration status of the victim or the offender.

III. DEFINITIONS

- A. Family violence: means an incident resulting in physical harm, bodily injury or assault, or an act of threatened violence that constitutes fear of imminent physical harm, bodily injury or assault between family or household members. Verbal abuse or argument shall not constitute family violence unless there is present danger and the likelihood that physical violence will occur. See Connecticut General Statutes § 46b-38a.
- B. Family or household member: means (A) spouses, former spouses; (B) parents and their children; (C) persons eighteen years of age or older related by blood or marriage; (D) persons sixteen years of age or older other than those persons in subparagraph (C) presently residing together or who have resided together; (E) persons who have a child in common regardless of whether they are or have been married or have lived together at any time; and (F) persons in, or have recently been in, a dating relationship. See Conn. Gen. Stat. § 46b-38a.
- C. Family violence crime: means a crime as defined in section 53a-24 which, in addition to its other elements, contains as an element thereof an act of family violence to a family member and shall not include acts by parents or guardians disciplining minor children unless such acts constitute abuse. See Conn. Gen. Stat. § 46b-38a.
- D. Principal Petitioner: means a victim of a family violence crime whose immigration status is questionable, and who is filing for a T Nonimmigrant Visa or a U Nonimmigrant Visa on behalf of himself or herself or a qualifying family member.
- E. "T" Nonimmigrant Visa: Victims of Trafficking, also known as the "T-visa," provides immigration protection to victims of a severe form of trafficking in persons. The T-visa allows victims to remain in the United States and assist federal authorities in the investigation and prosecution of human trafficking cases.
- F. "U" Nonimmigrant Visa - Victims of Criminal Activity, also known as the "U-visa," provides temporary. Immigration benefits to aliens and their qualifying family members who are victims of qualifying criminal activity, who have suffered mental or physical abuse as a result, and who are willing to assist law enforcement and government officials in the investigation of criminal activity.
- G. Questionable immigration status: means any individual who cannot reasonably satisfy the investigating officer that he/she is a U.S. citizen, a lawful permanent resident of the United States, a documented permanent or temporary worker, a student or exchange visitor, a member of the U.S. Armed Forces, or otherwise lawfully present in the United States, or whose visa will likely expire before the case in which the individual is a victim can be fully prosecuted.

- H. Qualifying criminal activity: means criminal activity that involves one or more of the following or any similar activity in violation of Federal, State, or local criminal law: rape; torture; trafficking; incest; domestic violence; sexual assault; abusive sexual contact; prostitution; sexual exploitation; female genital mutilation; being held hostage; peonage; involuntary servitude; slave trade; kidnapping; abduction; unlawful criminal restraint; false imprisonment; blackmail; extortion; manslaughter; murder; felonious assault; witness tampering; obstruction of justice; perjury; or attempt, conspiracy, or solicitation to commit any of the above mentioned crimes. See Title 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(U)(iii).

IV. GENERAL GUIDELINES AND CONSIDERATIONS

- A. Generally speaking, U.S. immigration law gives citizens and lawful permanent residents the right to petition for their spouses to be granted a permanent resident visa, which is the necessary prerequisite for immigrating to the United States. In the vast majority of cases, granting the right to seek the visa to the citizen or lawful permanent resident spouse makes sense, since the purpose of family immigration visas is to allow U.S. citizens or lawful permanent residents to live here with their spouses and children. But in the unusual case of the abusive relationship, an abusive citizen or lawful permanent resident can use control over his or her spouse's visa as a means to blackmail and control the spouse. The abusive spouse does this by withholding a promised visa petition and then threatening to turn the abused spouse in to the immigration authorities if the abused spouse sought to leave the abuser or report the abuse. The Violence Against Women Act of 1994 (VAWA 1994), Public Law 103-322 (September 13, 1994), changed this by allowing immigrants who demonstrate that they have been battered or subjected to extreme cruelty by their U.S. citizen or lawful permanent resident spouses to file their own petitions for visas without the cooperation of their abusive spouse. VAWA 1994 also allowed abused spouses placed in removal proceedings to seek "cancellation of removal," a form of discretionary relief from removal available to individuals in unlawful immigration status with strong equities, after three years rather than the seven ordinarily required. Finally, VAWA 1994 granted similar rights to minor children abused by their citizen or lawful permanent resident parent, whose immigration status, like that of the abused spouse, would otherwise be dependent on the abusive parent.
- B. The Violence Against Women Act of 2000 (VAWA 2000), Section 1001 et seq. of The Victims of Trafficking and Violence Protection Act of 2000, Public Law 106-386 (October 28, 2000), addresses residual immigration law obstacles standing in the path of battered immigrant spouses and children seeking to free themselves from abusive relationships that either had not come to the attention of the drafters of VAWA 1994 or have arisen since as a result of 1996 changes to immigration law. Section 1501 of VAWA 2000, cited as the "Battered Immigrant Women Protection Act of 2000," further enhanced the goal of the immigration protections for battered immigrants included in the Violence Against Women Act of 1994 to remove immigration laws as a barrier that kept battered immigrant women and children locked in abusive relationships by (1) providing battered immigrant women and children who were experiencing domestic violence at home with protection against deportation, (2)

- allowing them to obtain protection orders against their abusers, and (3) freeing them to cooperate with law enforcement and prosecutors in criminal cases brought against their abusers and the abusers of their children without fearing that the abuser will retaliate by withdrawing or threatening withdrawal of access to an immigration benefit under the abuser's control.
- C. The Victims of Trafficking and Violence Protection Act of 2000 created two new nonimmigrant visas for non-citizen victims of crimes, the T-visa and the U-visa. Both visas are designed to provide immigration status to non-citizens that are assisting or are willing to assist authorities investigating crimes. The visas are available not only to the victims of domestic violence, but also to victims of trafficking in persons, as defined in Title 22 U.S.C. § 7102, as set forth in Section 1101(a)(15)(T and U) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, Title 8 U.S.C. § 1101 et seq.
 - D. The T-visa was created to provide immigration protection to victims of a severe form of trafficking in persons. The T-visa also allows victims to remain in the United States and assist federal authorities in the investigation and prosecution of human trafficking cases. Those who have been granted T-1 nonimmigrant status may file for permanent residency upon meeting certain requirements. There is also a process for qualifying family members of a T-1 principal applicant to apply for permanent residence.
 - E. The purpose of the U-visa is to give victims of identified crimes temporary legal status and work eligibility in the United States for up to 4 years. Only 10,000 U visas may be issued every fiscal year. Family members may also be included on the petition including spouses, children, unmarried sisters and brothers under 18; mothers, fathers, as well as step-parents and adoptive parents. An approved U-visa petition will automatically grant the applicant work eligibility in the United States. An Employment Authorization Document will be included with all approved petitions, which can be shown to any employer to obtain a Social Security Number to start work legally. Currently all U-visa applications are filed at the Vermont Service Center of the U.S. Customs and Immigration Service (USCIS).
 - F. Applicability
 1. The Uniform Connecticut Law Enforcement Protocol For Treating Victims of Family Violence Whose Immigration Status Is Questionable applies to all state and local law enforcement agencies in the State of Connecticut.
 2. The requirements of the Uniform Connecticut Law Enforcement Protocol For Treating Victims of Family Violence Whose Immigration Status Is Questionable shall be implemented whenever it reasonably appears that a victim of family violence, whose immigration status is questionable:
